India wants Zia's remarks to be clarified

NEW DELHI. April 30 (AFP) - India has asked Pakistan to clarify remarks; reportedly made by President Zia Ul-Hao in a recent press interview stressing the need for resumption of the dialogue with India on a no-war pact, rather than in a joint commission, Foreign Minister Narasimha Rao sald

The dialogue on the proposal for a no-war pact was suspended after india indefinitely postponed a scheduled visit to Islamabad by Foreign Secretary R.D. Sathe early last month. The Indian decision was in protest at the Pakistani representatives' reference to the Kashimir dispute at a meeting of the U.N. Human Rights Commission in Geneva.

Meanwhile, in the upper house, anxiety was voiced over the detention of 10 Indiannationals in Pakistani prisons since 1974.

Rijo reiterated that India and Pakistan would shortly enter into an agreement for reciprocal consular facilities to prisoners, as agreed last month.

The joint commission was suggested by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi when the then Pakisiani Foreign Minister Agha Shahi, was in Delhi last February.

Speaking in parliament, Rao said his new Pakistani counterpart, Sahabzada Yaquh Khan, had delivered a message to him through the Pakistani high commissioner, reiterating Pakistan's commitment to pursue both the proposals outlined in the joint statement issued at the end of Shahi's visit. Rao told the lower house Thursday that India had strongly protested to Pakistan over the alleged torturing of 10 Indian detainces. He added that India had asked for their immediate repatria-

Iraq claims routing Iranians on 2 fronts it had defeated a new Iranian offensive in the 19-month-old Gulf war and on one front its forces were preparing to counter-attack.

The official Iraqi News Agency quoted a military spokesman in Baghdad as saying the Iraqi army had "imposed a total defeat on the units of the Iranian enemy" on two hattlefronts in Iran's oil province of Khuzestan. The spokesman said that on a third front, Iraqi forces had stopped an iranian push across a strategic river and other units were being drawn up to mount a counter-attack.

Iraqi jet fighters Thursday pounded Iran's largest oil-exporting terminal on Kharg island, INA reported. The island terminal 75 kilometers northwest of the port city of Busher, was hit at 14.55 local time (11.55GMT).

Quoting an unnamed milhary spokesman, the news agency warned any ships passing near the island that they would also be subjected to Iraqi attacks. It gave no other details.

Kharg island houses Iran's only oil terminai that can handle super tankers. Other export terminals such as the on Lavan island, also in the Gulf, are much smaller with less sophisticated equipment and unable to load several ships simultaneously. Iran which is believed to be exporting one million barrels of oil per day, must pump more crude to meet the requirements for its current budget which depends on revenues from at least two million barrels of oil per day in exports. Both Iran and Iraq Thursday reported heavy fighting on the hattlefront at Mehran, western Iran.

According to Tehran Radio Iranian armed forces launched an all-out offensive Friday to recapture the key port city of Khorramshahr, Iraq's main prize in the 19-month-old war. The lightning push began at dawn with a combined ground, sea and air attack on Iraqi troops in the Abadan-Khorramshahr region, the radio said.

The hattlefield lies east of the Shatt Al-Arab waterway which divides the warring countries at the head of the Gulf. The radio said Iranian forces had crossed the strategic Karun River and were advancing toward Khorramshahr.

The Iranian army recaptured parts of a vital Iraqi supply road running north to the Iranian-held city of Ahwaz, driving a wedge between Iraqi troops in northern and western Khuzestan province, the radio claimed. In the offensive Iranian forces smashed Iraqi frontline defenses, shot down five planes and captured 1,000 Iraqis according to the radio.

Military analysts said Iran's task in freeing Khorramshahr would be extremely difficult. They said Iraqi troops were well entrenched in the once prosperous port, now flattened by months of heavy artillery bombardments.

The new Iranian offensive comes exactly 40 days after an operation in western Khuzestan where Iran recovered 2.000 square km of territory in an eight-day hattle. The analysts said the Iranians won back the territory at cost of heavy casualties, using human waves of revolutionary guards as the main element in their offensive. One analyst said Iran might using the same technique in a new offensive hut added: "how long can they keep it up?" The March offensive was followed by peace efforts by the Nonaligned Movement and Islamic organizations. But they failed to persuade Iran to go to the negotiating table.

Reagan seeks statute change

U.S. budget parley fails

WASHINGTON, April 30 (Agencies) -President Ronald Reagan officially asked Congress to pass a constitutional ameodment requiring U.S. government to balance the federal budget.

Reagan, uoable to agree with congressional Democrats on a compromise 1983 budget, has appealed directly to the American people to help him beat his opponents in

In a televised address Thursday night from the White House Oval Office, the president stressed the need to send a "message" to the financial market to put the American economy back on course - a move which depended largely on interest rates, he said.

"We have tried the carrot and it failed. With the stick of a balanced hudget amendment, we can stop government's squandering, over-taxing ways, and save our economy."
Reagan said. But it was expected the amendment would take several years to get passed. Congress must approve it by a two-thirds majority in each house of the Congress, after which four fifths of the states — 38 out of 50 - must pass the measure for it to become

President Reagan blamed Democrats for the failure of his meeting Wednesday with the Democratic Speaker of the House of Representatives, Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, and Senate Republican leader Sen. Howard Baker, saying: "Apparently, the philosophical difference between us is that they want more and more spending, and more and more taxes."

The president warned that the budget deficit would hit $233 billion in 1985 if no compromise were reached with Congress on hudget cuts. But the deficit could be contained at $44 billion if a "reasonable" compromise were found, he said. On more immediate problems, in particular the 1983 budget, the president said he would hold meetings Friday with Republican leaders in the Senate and the House to try and work out an accord.

For the 1983 budget, Reagan indicated he would use the same strategy to win over Democrats as he did for the 1981 hudget. Last year, in a series of speeches on television, the president used his immense popularity to force Congress tn adopt his 1982 hudget, which contained the largest spending and tax cuts in U.S. history.

Frustrated Thursday in his atlempt to reach a 1983 budget compromise with Democrats. Rengan again urged the voters to force his opponents to give in. "You did it once, you can do it again." the Republican PHOENIX, Arizona, April 30 (AP) -Amino acids - a hlock of proteins - have been found in fragments from a meteorite that crashed in Australia, a leam of researchers report.

Bartholom Nagy, a geochemist at the University of Arizona in Tueson, reported in a paper published in the British journal, Nature, that the fragments contained the kind of amino acids that most commonly occur in living things.

The co-author of the paper was Michael Engel of the Carnegie Institution in Washington. Nagy said he and Engel are not talking about extraterrestrial life. But a leading astrogeologist, Dr. Eugene Shoemaker, said president said.

Opposition Democrats were quick to respond, saying Reagan's policies have led the U.S. economy into a high unemployment recession that discriminates against the poor.

The budget has run into trouble in Congress becausc of resistance to tax cuts approved last year and the president's proposal to increase defense spending by 1g percent in 1983. Democratic leaders also oppose the scope of spending cuts proposed by the president in social welfare programs and have said his policies discriminate against the poor.

The president gave an account of monthlong negotiations between White House and congressional representatives. These collapsed when he was unable to narrow differences with House Speaker Thomas O'Neill. a Democrat, at a three-hour meeting Wednes-Îmmediately after Reagan's speech, Democratic Rep. Richard Bolling countered in a televised address of his own.

Bolling, who took part in the ill-fared budget negotiations, said Reagan's economic program was too amhitious last year. He said the president's tax cuts and heavy defense buildup produced massive hudget deficits for the foreseeable future while cutting important programs for the needy. "What the president tried to do was too much too quickly," Bolling said.

Reagan ran for office on a pledge to balance the budget by 1984. But with each passing month of recession, the president has been forced to revise his deficit estimates. Recently, he conceded the budget shortfall would reach $93.8 billion in 1984.

Meanwhile, administration officials conceded that the expected economic recovery from its current deep recession will be stalled because of the mounting deficits the government is incurring.

The deficit for the government's 1982 financial year ending Sept. 30 is projected at $100 billion. Without deep spending cuts or a massive injection of new tax revenues in the 1983 hudget, the United States faces a deficit of about $180 hillion in 1983 and a sea of red-ink in future years.

discuss Arab issues

DHAHRAN, April 30 (SPA) - The Palestinian quescion and Israeli aggression in South Lebanon and other issues of Arab concern were discussed by King Khaled and Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liheration Organization.

Arafat who left here Friday had talks also with Prince Abdullah, second deputy premier, and commander of the National Guard, Defense Minister Prince Sultan and Foreign Minister Prince Saud, about Arah issues specially the ongoing uprising in the occupied lands. The Palesonians were grateful he said, for King Khaled's call for solidarity with the Palestinian struggle.

Kaunda holds useful talks' with Botha KOPFONTEIN GATE. South Africa,

Anril 36 (Agencies) - South African Prime minister P.W. Botha and Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda held more than three hours of "useful" talks Friday in a rare bush summit between a black African leader and the head of the white-minority South African government. The two leaders, adversaries in the region's racial conflict, emerged smiling from a mobile trailer straddling the South Africa-Botswana border hurriedly set up for the meeting. The delegations issued a brief, cautious communique after the summit indicating the summit produced no concrete agreements. "The two leaders had a frank exchange of views on the situation in Southern Africa in their search for a peaceful solution to the problems in the area." the statement said. The issues covered were those of Namihia and South Africa. "Both leaders found the exchange of views useful."

Sources close to both delegations said earlier that the two sides could be seeking a deal on a cutback on South African raids into Angola in exchange for a clampdown on the activities of the South West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO) in Southern Angola.

South African leaders are not used to discussing their domestic problems with representatives of foreign governments, but it was likely that Botha made use of this opportunity to outline the reforms he wishes to implement at home. Observers here said that on several occasions over the past couple of weeks, the South African premier has reiterated his determination to reach some powersharing arrangement with South Africa's 2.8 million coloreds (people of mixed race) and 800,000 Indians.

The presidential council, a consultative body set up in September 1980, is due to submit its findings on the reform proposals May 10.

The Zamhian president, who has several times come out in support on a peaceful settlement of the Namibian issue, could have some influence on the CNA, which has a bureau in Lusaka and a refugee camp near Mongu, in the west of Zambia.

High African sources said they were expecting a shift in policy among the Angolan authorities in Luanda, perhaps as a result of recent visits there by American husinessmen and Portuguese President Antonio Eanes. They said this was why Angolan leaders were not necessarily hostile to a reduction of SWAPO activities on their territory, in exchange for a halt to South African raids.

Kaunda is understood to have appealed for the release of imprisoned African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, the Johan nesburg Star's Africa news service reported

Argentina bows to U.N. resolution

UNITED NATIONS, April 30 (R) -Argentina said Friday it was ready to comply with the Security Council's mandatory resolution on the Falklands crisis in its entirety. Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez also told reporters that his government had not rejected U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig's peace proposals. This contradicted Haig's statement Friday that the plan had been turned down in Bueпоs Aires. The resolution Costa Mendez referred to was adopted on April 3 and called for an end to hostilities, immediate withdrawal of Argentine forces from the Falklands and a diplomatic settlement. Costa Mendez reaffirmed to reporters the Argentine government's wish for a negoriated, peaceful solution to the Costa Mendez said Argentina was in favor of U.N. intervention in the crisis. The Latin connection of Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar — he is from Peru — should not bar him from participating in the search for a solution. He said that after having negotiated in vain for 17 years for a settlement of the Falklands problem, Argentina was still open for further discussions on the question. Costa Mendez made his remarks only minutes after the United States announced it was imposing economic and military sanctions against Argentina, and offering "material support" to Britain. The Argentine minister had just conferred with Perez de Cuellar and the President of the Security Council. A U.N. spokesman said Costa Mendez had not asked for further council action in the crisis. But his reference to de Cuellar and various U.N. organs appeared to leave a wide field of options for possible peace efforts. The minister said any negotiations should center on Argentine sovereignty over the islands, which was not negotiable. U.S. ends neutrality, backs U.K.

WASHINGTON, April 30 (Agencles) The United States Friday ended hearly a month of neutrality in the Falklands erisis with Secretary of State Alexander Heig announcing U.S. support for Britain and sanctions against Argentina.

Haig said Argentina Thursday rejected U.S. proposals for a peaceful solution to the problem, and that Washington had agreed to aid Britain, which responded favorably to the American plan.

American assistance to Britain would exclude direct U.S. military intervention, he added. Sanctions against Argentina included suspension of all military aid and sales of weapons and equipment, he told newsmen here Friday. Haig said the U.S. had made every effort to solve the Falklands crisis peacefully. He said his proposals for a diplomatic solution included:

- Cessation of hostilities, - Withdrawal of Argentine and British troops from the Falklands. - Creation of a temporary, Iripartite administration on the island, including Argentina,

Britain and the U.S., - Continuation of the local, traditional administration of the island with Argentine participarion, and

- Establishment of a framework leading to a final solution which would consider "the interests of both sides and the wishes of the inhabitants" of the Falklands.

Israelis dismiss 4th Arab mayor of West Bank town

TEL AVIV. April 30 (Agencies) - Israeli military authorities in the occupied West Bank Friday dismissed the mayor of Anahta, Wahid Hamdullah, the fourth mayor to be fired in a drive to weaken Palesrinian Hamdullah told the Associated Press by telephone he had been summoned to the military headquarters to be told he had been dismissed, and then Israeli soldiers had driven him home." They told me not to leave my house," he said. The military command said Maj. Gen. Uri Orr, commander of the central front, had ordered the dismissal of Hamdullah who, in addition to opposing Israeli occupation, had flouted restrictions on his movement and possessed literature of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Hamdullah was convicted by a military court Sunday.

The occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip and Arab East Jerusalem have heen in a turhulent state of uprising since mid-March when Israel fired the mayors of El Bireh, Nahlus and Ramallah, Israeli soldiers have shot several Palestinians dead in suppressing riots that were further inflamed April 11 by a Jewish gunman's attack on the Al Aqsa and Omar mosques.

Hamdullah, an associate of dismissed Nablus Mayor Bassam Shakaa, opposed the civil administration that Israel started in the West Bank last November in a drive to draw Palestinians into supporting the Camp David plan for limited self-rute in the occupied ter-

In the meantime Israeli and Palestinian sources Friday both published heavy casualty figures for the past weeks' uprising in the occupied West Bank, though independent observers have found the Israeli figures to be far too low as far as Palestinian casualties are Quoting military sources, The Jerusalem Post said that nine Pales ...ians had been killed and 90 ... Jed since March 10, when Israeli authorities dissolved the town council in the West Bank town of El Bireh. This figure did nnt include those shot dead in the Al Aqsa and Omar mosques in Jerusalem or the wounded in that incident.

The Israeli sources said that two Israeli soldiers had died over the same period, with 32 wounded, along with 16 Israeli and four foreign civilians. The figures for Israeli casualties are probably right, but are far from the truth for Palestinian casualties, as foreign newsmen have regularly discovered by making rounds of the hospitals after the uprising. The Palestinian press office Friday published figures - identifying each vicrim listing eight Palestinians dead and 180 wounded by gunfire since only April 11. The list did not count those injured other than hy Israeli shots.

On visa rules and regulations

Interior ministry to publish brochure

RIYADH, April 30 — The Interior Ministry will shortly bring out a brochure in Arabic (and subsequently in English) explaining the rules and regulations concerning visa. "Many expatriates do not know the procedures to be followed for obtaining visas. They do not produce the necessary papers, which cause the hold-up. We hope that with the publication of this brochure, there will be fewer mistakes on the part of the applicants." Dr. Abdul Jaleel Al-Saif, director-general for visa control in the ministry of interior, told Arab News in an interview recently.

He said many visa applicants make the mistake of signing the contract without obtaining the permit from the commerce ministry." Till the permit is obtained, no visa can be issued in such cases," he clarified. The permit specifies the type of job one has been authorised to do. Yet deviations from the permit have been detected. People apply for visas for iobs not sanctioned by the permit. Thus they cither apply without a permit or do not follow the permit when obtained," he said.

Other lapses concern non-production of departure certificate for the employee who has left. Unable to produce the certificate from the respective embassies, they trot out flimsy excuses for cover-up. "We replace visas only on the basis of new contracts, departure certificates or certificates for the unused visas." Saif said.

According to him, it is also incumbent on applicants in need of block visas to produce a supporting letter from the regional labor office. The letter should certify that the company exists and is engaged in the profession however, apply to well-known foreign or local tirms, companies having contract with any ministry or a government cstablishment or those engaged in a big government project, the director-general clarified.

He said the measure has become necessary since a few spurious firms are operating with a view to making easy money by recruiting foreign labor for which a tidy sum is collected and later shared between the Saudi partner and his recruiting agency. This leaves the laborer in the lurch because, on arrival, he was not mentioned at the time of the interview. The requirement of a supporting letter from the labor office is meant to take care of this, Saif added.

He also referred to the new facility under which an employment visa can be extended up to one year from the present duration of six months. He said the new facility, which follows a directive from Prince Naif and his deputy Prince Abmad, is intended to help foreigners, both in the matter of block and individual visa requirements.

Natsha hails King's solidarity call

DAMMAM, April 30 (SPA) -- Rafiq Natsha, representative of the Palestine Liberation Movement (Fateh) in the Kingdom, has reiterated that King Khaled's appeal for solidarity with the people of Palestine has greatly heightened their morale to encounter the Zionisi persecution. In a statement to SPA Friday. Natsha expressed the Palestinian people's gratitude to the King and the Crown Prince for the royal appeal and a favorable response from most countries of the world. He said the King's call was not merely a denunciation and a protest but a practical translation of words in deeds. which helped a great deal in elisting world support and obtaining financial assistance from the public and officials in the Kingdom.

Natsha said the U.S. pro-Israel stance has contributed much in the escalation of terrorist activities against the Palestinian people. In this context, he instanced the U.S. veto at the U.N. Security Council against all resolutions condemning the Zionist entity.

He said the non-aligned nations have ann-

SAPTCO has new bus route

By a Staff Writer

JEDDAH, April 30 (SPA) - The Saudi Arabian Public Trensport Company (SAP-TCO) is introducing a complementary route in Jeddah which will be operated during the peak morning and evening hours, the company has announced.

The new route, number 08, will run between downtowe and Prince Abdullah Palace ie Inekish via Siteeo Street as of May I. The line will complement the existing route number Route 08 starts from Asad and runs northward on Bab Makkah Street to Baiya Square. Then buses go east on Mater Street past the Saudia Building up to old airport. Then turns north on Prince Fehd Street (Siteen) to terminate west of Prince Abdullah Palace. When construction of the Sharafiya flyover at Prince Fahd Street finishes, the route outbound trip will go over the bridge instead of passing the flyover at old sirport gate.

Buses on the new line work in peak hours beginning at 0535 and operate until 0854 hours. Buses start again at 1531 and operate until 2154 hours. Service is every 12 minutes.

A.W. Mansouri, Jeddah resident manager, said that the new route has been established to give more seats and more mobility to people traveling on Route 8. "When the route operates over the Sharafiya bridge, it will offer faster service, too," he added.

can Unity as well as representatives of Arab and Islamic agencies. Discussions envered the hank's policy for 1982, in addition to a report on its activities by Chedli Ayari, the president of the bank.

Meanwhile, Aba Al-Khail said that the total aids and loans given by the Arab states to African countries since 1973 has reached the $7.5 billion mark. He said this Thursday in the eighth annual meeting of the board of governors of Arab Bank for Economic Development in Africa (BADEA). He added that six Arab states contributed 2.7 percent from their gross national product in 1980 in the form of assistance to African countries.

The African share of Arab aids during 1982 was 35 percent, or nearly $1 billion, as against five percent when the bank was established in 1973, he added. The finance minister said that, since its inception, BADEA has given 123 loans and grants to 37 African countries to the tune of $680 million.

On the other hand, Sudanese President Jaafar Numeiri delivered a speech before the conference and commended the positive role being played by BADEA in cementing Arab-African cooperation in all spheres. He said he had no reservations in willing to strive for the strengtbening of ties between the Arabs and the Africans.

King Khaled Airport to be ready soon

JEDDAH. April 30 - The SR11 billion King Khaled International Airport at Rivadh is almost 65 percent complete. with 33 separate contracts given for construction of permanent facilities and 26 others for the support facilities.

Brig. Said Yousef Amin, director of International Airports Projects [IAP], told Saudi Business that 400 companies were invited to suhmit proposals and about 200 of them actually did so. Of these, 59 were selected but hundreds of other firms are likely to participate as subcontractors and suppliers.

Hc said that 27 Saudi firms are now involved in the project either as contractors or subcontractors. Of the 86 companies serving as suppliers of materials, 41 are Saudi, he said, and added that the IAP works jointly with its construction management firm, Arabian Becbtel Company, to keep track of the progress. Computers provide information for property management, financial control, purchasing logistics, document control, airport planning and maintenance management.

Brig. Amin said a unique feature of the airport will be the use of "air bridges" connecting the terminal and the aircraft, which are being used for the first time in the Kingdom. Passenger parking facilities are located directly in front of the terminals, so there is a minimum of walking involved in getting from car to aircraft. The facilities include two parallel runways, two domestic terminals and two international terminals; a royal pavilion; a large mosque, a control tower and a landscaped ceremonial mall 300 meters long.

Knoxville witnesses' biggest extravaganza'

Kingdom participates in Energy Expo '82

By Charles W. Holmes Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON - Saudi Arabia is taking part in the South's "biggest extravaganza," the first international exhibition to be held anywhere in the world since 1975. Twentytwo other countries have set up shops in Knoxville, Tennessee, putting the finishing touches on their pavilions for the 1982 World's

Despite the usual bours of local political controversy, financial squabbles and construction delays associated with such a gigantic undertaking. The fair — officially known as Energy Expo '82 — will get underway as scheduled May t.

The foreign exhibits, displays by over 50 corporations, shops, restaurants, an amusement park, concerts and sporting events and, if everything goes as the fair's promoters hope, about 11 million people will fill a 72acre site in downtown knoxville by the time the expo closes on Oct. 31.

Saudi Arabia's pavilion in Knoxville will mark the first time the Kingdom has participated in such an international event in the United States. And it's taking the opportunity not only to display the petroleum industry, but also the qualities of Saudi Arabia that are lesser known by Americans, and much of the Knoxville's theme will be "Energy Turns the World," giving nations and companies a chance to display their concept of just what keeps things running. It is a more than apt title for the modest East Tennessee city which is near the Oak Ridge nuclear facilities -"birthplace of the atomic age" — and serves as bome for the Tennessee Valley Authority, the United States' most extensive network of hydoelectric production

But expositions like Knoxville will also give Saudi Arabia and other countries a chance to show off their cultures - the energy of their peoples. And one company is even sponsoring a sports Hall of Fame, in a more loosely adapted exhibition on the energy theme — sports energy.

"Most Americans think only of oil, desert and camels when you say Saudi Arabia," said Ibrahim Khoja, the Kingdom's commercial attache in Washington and overseer of the design and construction of the Saudi pavilion.

"We want to demonstrate that the use of our wealth takes place within development plans which emphasize human welfare as well as industrial growth, "Khoja said. Khoja, who has been shuttling between Washington and Knoxville for the past year, said the fair will give Saudi Arabia the chance to educate "grassroots Americans" about the Kingdom. The pavilion's location in Tennessee and the fact that it will be open for six months give us the access to hundreds of thousands of people who will hear and see what is really happening in Saudi Arabia," Khoja explained. He estimated that more than three million people will file through the Saudi exhibit before the fair ends.

The pavilion's major theme, "Esternal Values in a Dynamic Nation" will show the cutturat and historic aspects of life in the Kindom, as well as the quickly changing industrial base and way of life.

A model of the Grand Mosque will highlight the 16,641-sq. foot Saudi exhibit, surrounded by five theme areas that will portray the human resources of the Saudis, Islam, the Kingdom's industrial development, the Cradle of Civilization and bedouin tradition, and 50 years of Saudi-U.S. relations. About 30 Saudi students attending school in the East Tennessee area will wear native Saudi dress and serve as guides for the pavilion,

"It would please me very much if the most important effect of the pavilion will be that the visitors will begin to appreciate Saudis as human beings who share the same concerns as other people throughout the world,

Reagan promises Tunisia support to meet threats

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) - U.S. President Ronald Reagan promised Thursday that Tunisia "can count on us" for help in thwarting any security threat from Libya or other challengers.

In a demonstration of U.S. support, Reagan met with Prime Minister Muhammad Mzali and then held a White House luncheon in his honor. The United States, concerned about challenges in North Africa from Libyan leader Muammar Quddafi is offering Tunisia $85 million in military sales credits to purchase aircraft, tanks and missiles this year and $140 million in arms aid next year.

U.S. arms sales for Tunisia totaled $15 million in 1981. A senior administration official said earlier this week the arms buildup was intended "to give them a reasonable and cre-

to mediate Aden-Muscat rift

KUWAIT, April 30 (R) — Foreign ministers of Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates IUAE1 will visit Aden Saturday in a fresh attempt to reconcile South Yemen and Oman, government officials said Thursday.

They said Sheikh Sabah Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah of Kuwait and Rashid Abdullah of the UAE will go on to Muscat, the capital of Oman, which has been at loggerheads with South Yemen. The ministers made an inconclusive reconciliation mission to both countries last year following the setting up of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council.

The council, which includes Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the UAE, Oman, Bahrain and Oatar, decided earlier this month to seek an end to disputes among Gulf countries.

U.K. to reduce strength of Beirut embassy

LONDON. April 30 (R) - Britain is preparing to run down its embassy in Beirut because of the deteriorating security situation in Lebanon, the Foreign Office said Friday.

Reports from Damascus, the Syrian capital, said that the four countries, along with the Palestine Liberation Organization, were discussing the possibility of convening a summit conference comprising leaders of the front which rejects the prineme religious authority in the future.

Montazeri, believed to be in his 60s. is handpicked by Muslim hardliners as the apparent to Khomeini. Last February, however. Iran's President Ali Khamenei was quoted in an interview as saying that a leadership council made up of three to five men will replace Khomeini when he dies.

Israel halts hus service to Cairo

CAtRO, April 30 (AFP) - The direct bus service inaugurated Thursday between Tel Aviv and Cairo has come to an early end, suspended "until further notice" by Israeli transport authorities.

When the first "number 100" bus arrived in here Thursday night, Israeli Deputy Transport Minister David Shiffman told Israeli journalists who had made the trip with him that he had decided to suspend the service "in the hope that road travel conditions between Israel and Egypt improve." The bus had taken almost 18 hours to cover 520 kms.

Passengers had to wait five-and-one-half hours at the check post at Rafah, despite the presence on the bus of Shiffman, who objected to having his passport being taken away for inspection. Angry at the delay, the minister asked an Egyptian officer if there was a hotel in Rafah. "There was one in Yamit, but you demolished it", the officer replied calmly. Yamit was razed by Israel before it handed back the last sector of Sinai April 25.

The trip, run from Tel Aviv by the Egged Bus Company and from Cairo by Delta Est. was to cost $17 for the one-way journey.

SOUTH YEMEN-OMAN RIFT

SANT THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPE

The foreign ministers of Kuwait and the UAE are due to resume their mediation between South Yemen and Oman which are locked in a running dispute dating back to the late 1960s but threatening to explode at any time. The two ministers represent the Galf Cooperat ion Council countries of which Oman is also a member while South Yomen, a close ally of the Soviet Union, does not recognize Oman and supports a "liberation front" based in South Yemen aimed at overthrowing the regime of Sultan Qabous.

Previous attempts have not borne fruit and the dispute has actually festered because of charges and counter-charges of falling into the laps of the superpowers. Oman says that South Yemen is a large Soviet military base with warplanes, warships and stockpiles of arms which one day helped India in its war with Pakistan resulting in the creation of Bangladesh. The same stockpik may someday be used against Oman and other Gulf states, according to Oman. South Yomen has been stung to the quick by the recent accord between Oman and the U.S. which led to the U.S. use of certain military facilities in the Omani island of Masirah, at one time a British staging area when Oman was British protectorate and the UAE called the Trucial States in colonialist

When Sultan Qabous ascended the throne after ousting his ailing father in 1970 the new South Yemen government which emerged independent from British colonialism at once launched the "liberalion front" in an attempt to dislodge the Qabous regime and instal a progressive" government in line with that of Aden.

The sultan managed, with Iranian assistance, to control the situation and decimate the front pushing it hack into South Yemen. There has been relative peace since 1975 but this could be disturbed if South Yemen and Oman do not patch it up and normalize their relations under Arab aegis and away from superpower entanglements. This may be mainly wishful thinking but the alternative is worse As both countries are of prime strategic interest the two superpowers will be watching the situation with special care.

Saudi Arabian press review

Iranian allegations that the Kingdom was involved in the coup attempt against the Khomeini regime, and the U.S. policy on the Palestine problem were the major topics for editorial comment in Friday's newspapers.

AL -Jazirah said it believed Israel was behind the Iranian charges that the Kingdom was involved in the latest coup attempt against the Rhomeini regime.

Commenting on the claim. which has since been categorically denied by Saudi official sources. the paper said. "We believe that Israel is behind the Khomeini regime's charges that the Kingdom was involved, with certain leading elements, in the coup attempt."

It described the charges as baseless and said that ever since the Kingdom was founded it had never been on record of having intervened in the internal affairs of other countries. "We see a foreign clement standing behind the unfounded Khomeini accusations against the Kingdom." it added. The paper wondered why the Khomeini regime did not dare to level such false charges against the Kingdom in all previous coup attempts. "Everybody knows that for several months now the Khomeini regime has been under the grip of Israel after it sought its help for arms and ammunition to continue the war against Iraq and after Isracl became in full control of the regime," it said.

'The Iranian regime's insiste nce to continue the war against Iraq despite its military defeat and economic, financial and social problems is an indication that Israel had robbed it its free will," it

Suharto certain to win elections By Peter Griffiths

JAKARTA --Indonesians vote next week in a parliamentary election which President Subarto is certain to win. Less certain is the economic future of this country, hit by the oil glut and the world recession. The outcome of the poll is a foregone conclusion - the confirmation of the ruling military-backed Golkar "functional group" for another five-year term.

The relatively weak opposition Muslim (PPP) Party and small Democratic Party may increase their representation in the 460-seat parliament, at present 70 percent controlled by the government with the help of 100 presidential appointees.

Indonesia, the world's most populous Muslim country, has enjoyed an oil-financed boom in the five years since the last election. The economy is still buoyant. But crude oil production, which stood at about 1.6 million barrels per day (bpd) early last year, has fallen to about 1.2 million - 100,000 bpd below a quota imposed by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). According to Oil Minister Subroto the government lost $680 million in the first quarter of this year in reduced oil revenue.

Although oil and gas exports account for nearly 80 percent of budgetary revenue, there has also been a serious drop in non-oil exports such as timber, coffee, tin, and rubber. These showed a 30 percent fall in value last year and there is little sign of recovery in prices or demand.

Foreign exchange reserves are still a healthy $11 billion. Neven beless economists, swith the help of the World Bank, are busy re-drafting a $25 billion budget for the 1982-83 financial year in the light of expected revenue shortfalls,

Efforts are being made to boost exports, officials are tightening up on tax collection and fresh foreign loans are being floated. Whatever happens, ministers promise there will be no reduction in the planned $13 billion development budget. Such a cut could weaken the government's position at the

Since independence in 1945, Indonesia has had only one real leadership change — the replacement of the late President Sukarno by President Suharto in the wake of a 1965 coup attempt. Economically President Suharto's record is impressive. With a great deal of help from oil revenues his new order regime, in close partnership with the armed forces (ABRI), has enforced national stability.

Inflation, which topped 650 percent in the anarchy of the Sukarno years, has been brought under control. It averaged 20 percent in the 70s, In 1981 it was officially put at only seven percent and this year, following a big cut in domestic fuel subsidies, will probably be no higher than 15 percent.

Self-sufficiency in rice, the staple food, is a dream that is turning into reality and has greatly enhanced the standing of the new order regime. In just three years massive government spending on rice development has turned the country round from being the world's biggest rice importer to having reserves of 2.5 million tons. Last year's record 22 million ton crop looks like being exceeded by another bumper harvest in 1982.

Suharto will reap important political rewards from the rice barvest. Almost half the nation's 147 million people are directly involved in growing it. But despite the regime's economic successes, or perhaps because of them, it is facing an upsurge in political frustration and demands for change.

Better communications and improved educational opportunities have created rising expectations among the younger generation and city dwellers. There are also increasing, though still-muted, demands for political reform. It may well be that to government will have to be more responsive to

Argentines baffled by Britain's reaction to Falklands' seizure

BUENOS AIRES — Britain's tough reaction to Argentina's seizure of the Falkland (Malvinas) Islands has prompted frustration and puzzlement here from the man in the street up to government level. Most Argentines are baffled as to why the British government should care so much for a group of islands so far from London and which, in Argentine eyes, bave been neglected for nearly a century and a half.

Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez said the British decision to send a big fleet steaming into the South Atlantic was like something out of a science fiction novel. Argentines have been taught for generations that Britain usurped the 200-odd islands in an act of piracy in 1833:

An American warship drove the Argentine garrison off the island in that year and Britain resumed control. Argentina had proclaimed sovereignty over the islands in 1816, when it declared independenee from Spain, in what it saw as a logical inheritance from colonial rule.

Now, 28 million Argentines have rallied behind a military junta which only a week before the occupation was under increasing pressure to speed a return to civilian government. Argentina's takeover of the Falklands on April 2 came after 17 years of fruitless negotiations. Argentina repeatedly accused Britain of dragging its feet over the issue and former Foreign Minister Oscar Camilion has said that whenever he tried to discuss it with the then foreign secretary, Lord Carrington, he met with rebuff and impatience.

"He made it very clear that Britain had more pressing issues to deal with, such as the Middle East, and that the Malvinas featured rather low on the Foreign Office's list of priorities," he said.

Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri made the early achievement of Argentine sovereignty over the archipelago one of the main objectives of his government when he seized power in a palace coup last December.

The government's original intention was to achieve substantial progress toward British acceptance of Argentine sovereignly by the end of this year through monthly talks. This was agreed in principle at a meeting between the two sides in New York last January but never ratified by London. This was taken by Argentina as a sign of British unwillingness to negotiate seriously, informed sources said. The timing of the takeover, coming on the heels of the biggest anti-government demonstration in six years of military rule, raised suspicion that it had been carried out to rally public opinion behind the government. But informed sources say that preparations to seize the archipelago began in late March, after Britain sent a navy ship to the Falklands dependencey of South Georgia when a group of Argentine scrap merchants hoisted their country's flag there.

Whatever its motives, the takeover has ended 149 years of deeply-felt frustration and triggered a burst of patriotic pride. The fact that the 1,800 islanders, mostly sbeep farmers of British stock want to remain British is irrelevant to most Argentines, who say that 100,000 people of British descent bave prospered in their country while keeping strong cultural links with their bomeland. They feel that the islanders have much to gain by becoming Argentines, a point many members of the Anglo-Argentine community have been stressing since the erisis erupted.

Government ministers have said that Argentine sovereignty would mean more economic help and less isolation for the islands, which are about 400 miles from Argentina and 8,000 miles from Britain. One of the first government moves was to set up color television facilities so that the islanders could watch next June's World Cup live.

Long queues forming outside army, navy and air force recruitment centers underline the general feeling in Argentina that the seizure was a rightful, though belated, response to Britain's occupation of the islands in 1833.

Most diplomatic analysts agree that economic and strategic considerations have played little part in the government's decision to take over the archipelago, whose far-flung dependencies of South Georgia and South Sandwich hold the key to strategic scalanes to the Antarctic. Argentina has laid a claim on one-tenth of the frozen continent but has made no mention of it throughout the erisis with Britain. (R)

Neutral states to participate in N- test ban talks

Her outburst eame after the director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA), Eugene Rostow, appeared to shring off hopes of ending nuclear blasts by telling the committee: "A test han cannot of itself end the threat posed by nuclear weapons." To many delegates here, the U.S. official appeared to be putting off prospects of a halt in testing to the dim and distant future. The effect of the new decision is to form a sort of committee of the whole in which all 40 nations will discuss how a test-ban, if achieved, can be properly policed and verified.

The United States, announcing to general surprise six weeks ago that it would like to bring other U.N. members into the discussions, admitted this was a complete policy change. But Ambassador Louis Fields said the U.S. had heeded appeals from other countries.

The Soviet Union and its allies gave their apparently reluctant assent to the plan on the final day of the session, possibly fearing they would be branded as a new obstacle to progress, giving the U.S. a public relations advantage. Brazilian Ambassador Antonio de Souza Silva bad complained about this "power game of the most heavily armed nations, utterly disregarding the wishes of the largest part of mankind."

Mexican Ambassador Alfonso Garcia Robles said it was inadmissible that the future of mankind sbould be held hostage to a few nuclear-weapon states, notably the two superpowers.

The first test of progress in the new-type talks, starting this summer, will be agreement on what to talk about. In proposing the formation of the group, the U.S. insisted it should deal only with the problem of compliance with a nuclear test ban. But it will be bard to restrict the mandate so severely.

Swedish delegate Curt Lidgard, welcoming the prospect of extended participation in the talks, gave notice immediately that his country would present once again this summer a draft treaty to ban nuclear tests in all environments, first tabled in 1977, Lidgard also called for an end to what he called "the power game" of the big nuclear powers and said the new group's success would depend on the extent to which they participated. Participants in the new body must be able to discuss "all aspects" of a nuclear test ban and not iust verification procedures, as the U.S. proposed. While generally supporting this view, Third World delegates say they are hoping the new committee does not get bogged down immediately in East-West polemics and endless propaganda speeches.

'Survivalists' stock retreats with food, water, prepare for the failure of nuclear arms control

By Simon Alterman

CHICAGO. (R) -- While Moscow and Washington toss different proposals for nuclear arms control at each other, a company in Texas is trying to prepare people in case the day comes when the missiles themselves start

Even noted survivalist Bruce Clyton, writing in the magazine, was skeptical about such "crisis relocation plans."

Another article, entitled "Waterway Getaway," offered a suggestion. "If you have chosen a water route...you could be 100 miles (160 km) away from trouble in a matter of hours, safe in some secluded cove, your antenna quivering with bad news."

Whatever escape rouse you choose, the magazine says, adequate weaponry is essential. "One primary use of the survival is in hunting game to supplement food supplies." said one article. "The other, and more critical use, is self-defense.

Film-maker fights against plan to slaughter penguins

BUENOS AIRES, (LOS) - The commercial slaughter of up to 48,000 penguins a year is being planned by an Argentine company on the assumption that the military government is about to repeal a 1974 wildlife protection law. The law bans the hunting of penguins and some other sea creatures around the shores of Patagonia in southern Argentina.

As part of growing local opposition to the slaughter, a local wildlife-film-maker. Juan Schroeder, recently asked for a court injuntion to prevent the law being repealed. Schroeder argues that the company's main justification - that penguins are predators and that their meat is a useful source of protein - is not based on biological evidence but on investment convenience.

However the chairman of Hinode Penguins, Gustavo Larrea, remains unperturbed by the protests. "Plans for the project are going well and it is only a matter of time before the authorities approve it," he confidently predicted.

Larrea hopes to set up a 'factory for the skinning and boning of the penguins, and a second plant nearby for the extraction of protein from the birds' meat. He believes they will be operating "before the end of the year.

Larrea said there were well over eight million penguins in the region and that their "overpopulation" was Argentina's fishing industry. He claims the nutritional value of a single penguin is enough to keep a small child alive for a month.

The penguin is the best product in terms of concentration of protein that Argentina, has. The authorities know this and that is why they are going to give me the go ahead," he

Juan Zattera, spokesman for Argentina's Secretarial for Maritime Interests, confirmed the authorities have no objection to the pro-

"However, we have to first prove that the wildlife protection law was passed by a de facto government (Peron) and is therefore unconstitutional. It is a delicate legal problem but we're in the process of changing the law."

Larrea admitted his newly formed company was looked at other commerical opportunities offered by the project. These are believed to include the export of penguin skin to countries like Japan for making handbags and gloves.

Larrea denied newspaper reports that Hinode Penguins was shared by Japanese interests - "it is wholly Argentine owned" but said there was a Japanese shareholding in another export-import company in which he was involved.

Vida Silvestre, the Argentine environmentalist pressure group, recently issued a statement strongly decrying claims made by Larres and some government officials. "It has been said that the penguins consume 720,000 tons of anchovies each year...but no evidence exists to substantiate this claim," the group said. It claimed the Hinode project would provoke a mass migration of penguins, one of Patagonia's main wildlife attractions.

Penguins are among the few monogamous animals in the world, laying to one egg a year and with one partner for life, Larrea's company will use electric stunning devices and chemical darts to capture "penguins that don't have mates," after the birds pair off in November.

Prison in Japan punishes negligent drivers

By Donald Kirk

ICHIHARA, Japan (LOS) - A tour through the world's only prison devoted exclusively to violators of traffic laws reveals the determination of Japanese authorities to inflict tough penalties on drivers - and to make sure they never commit the same kind of offenses again.

"I swear I will return to my good behavior as a driver," say the words in Japanese on a marble "Memorial of Atonement" in the midst of an expanse of green between austere cement buildiogs on the Boso Peninsula some 40 miles east of Tokyo.

Authorities here strive to guarantee that goal with a program of lectures, films - and even driving lessons on a course beside an athletic field on which prisoners spend an hour a day in sports.

"It's hard to believe that this place is a prison," says chief psychologist Hiroshi Hironaka. It's Hironaka's task to make sure that all the prisoners are "fully rehabilitated" after serving terms ranging from three months to three years,

It was because traffic violations did not appear as serious as ordinary criminal offeoses, say Japanese prison authorities, that they decided to build a special prison for those sentenced to jail.

Drivers normally are jailed in Japan for causing death by negligence at the wheel but otherwise are fined heavily and temporarily lose their licenses. When they have accumulated several serious violations they may go to jail. Terms average 10 months, with the length often depending on the seriousness of the accident and extent of injuries.

The basic concept of this prison reflects the deep respect of Japanese for maintaining the law. Indeed, few of the offenders here would have been jailed in the West.

Soichi Matsuki, the director of the prison, says nobody "has ever made a plan to escape from here since we opened the prison in 1969" - a phenomenon all the more remarkable since the prison has no walls.

Prisoners spend only the first four weeks of their sentences here in a conventional cell a single locked room that prevents them from communicating with other inmates. After that most of the prisoners transfer to dormitory-like rooms where they can talk to each other, "The basic point is to give them more and more freedom." says Matsuki, "So little by little they can feel responsibility,"

The prisoners undergo a regimen of special study combined with practical work, including fixing wrecked cars. Teachers give lectures, driver training and advice, most of it to ensure the prisoners will never again cause traffic accidents, but some intend to convince a minurity of them not to drive again,

'We believe 20 percent of the prisoners are not fit to drive, and we try to re-educate them so they will lose interest in driving." says Matsuki.

ierra Leoneans to vote today

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone, April 30 (AP) - Sierra Leoneans prepared to vote Saturday to elect a new parliament amid widespread reports of campaign violence and primary irregularities.

The general election for the 104-seat parliament is the first since a new constitution in 1978 established a one-party system under the African People's Congress (APC) of President Siaka Stevens.

Although there are no official figures on election-related casualties, political observers here say there have been at least 10 deaths. Other unconfirmed reports have said as

Americans scale Himalayan peak

KATMANDU, April 30 (AP) — The leader of a six-man American Cholatse expedition, Al Read, said here Friday his team's conquest of the 6,337-meter-high Mount Chointse was done via "one of the most difficult routes" in the Himalayas.

Read, 45, told a news conference, that the climb was "exceptionally difficult - technically tough — and it was not an easy route to the summit."

Read described Cholatse, not high by Himalayan standards, as an "important peak" in mountameering and said it is the last virgin peak in massive Khumhu ranges of northeast Nepal.

Four members of the expedition — three Americans, John Roskelley, 33, Galen A. Rowell, 41, and Vern Clevenger, 26, and a British member, William O'Comor, 35, of Harrogate, North Yorkshire - conquered Cholatse on April 22 in alpine style without fixed camps and without sherps support. Read said they did not bave any of the fixed ropes along the steep southeast ridge.

expedition scaled Cholatse in "four days up and down climb," starting April 20. Five climbers left their base camp on April 20 and spent the night at a.5,575-meter-high col situated oo the top of an icefall.

But the following morning, Dr. Peter H. Hackettuwven of Anchorage, Alaska, suffered from a flu attack, and was forced to remain there. The other four men continued their climb. "We found the going difficult. We were ice climbing instead of snow climbing,"

This forced the climbers to return to a place situated about 12 meters lower to spend the night.

The morning of April 22, the climbers made the final attack, reaching the summit after a 12-hour climb, they said.

Each of the climbers spent a few minutes on the summit and returned to camp on a 628-meter-high plateau, an hour's descent. The expedition was received at the base camp: by the team leader, Al Read.

Soviets rebut U.S. charges

MOSCOW, April 30 (R) — The Soviet news agency Tass has branded the United States as the world's higgest arms exporter in a rebuttal of an official U.S. report accusing Moscow of that role.

Tass said Thursday the Americans had been the higgest international weapons dealers for the whole of the past decade and controlled more than 50 percent of the entire world marker.

The report was in response to the U.S. Control and Disarmament Ageocy (AC-DA), which reported Wednesday that Moscow had become the world's higgest arms exporter in 1978 and 1979 with more than

An ACDA official said the Soviet Union had delivered $9.6 hillion worth of military equipment to other countries in 1979, while U.S. supplies were worth only $5.1 billion. He accused Moscow of threatening world stability by irresponsible arms dealing.

Tass said the ACDA statistics on U.S. sales had ofviously understated the real figures, which were twice as high. It quoted a U.S. organization called the Military Problems Information Center as saving U.S. arms exports over the past decade had amounted to $123 billion. The Tass report made no comment on the . LONDON. April 30 (AP) — The windswept Falklands, where sheep and penguins far outnumber people, the Falkland Islands Trading Co. is everything to almost every

The company, chartered by Queen Victoria in 1851, owns 43 percent of the land and half of the some 600,000 sheep. It employs a third of the workforce, is the only wholesale butcher, the dominant retailer and a major bouse-owner. It bas sole control of imports and exports. As there is no bank, its checking and savings accounts are the only system of finaoce.

About the only important thing it doesn't own or run is the archipelago's population of 5 million penguins,

But C. Edwin Needham, chairman of the company's parent, Coalite and Chemical Products Ltd., bristles at the suggestion it is keeping alive the ghosts of old Britisb imperial trading companies and virtually holding the 1,800 islanders in thrall.

"It is very easy to sit back and make these colonialism criticisms," he told the Associated Press.

If the Falkland Islands Co. didn't provide employment, housing and supplies, he asked "who would?"

For many of the firm's 300 to 400 employees the day begins in a company-owned

The Falkland Islands Company Ltd. was founded by Samuel Fisher Lafone, a Montevideo, Uruguay, rancher aod merchant who had heard reports of wild cattle on the islands and, in 1846, struck a deal with Britain to give him the right to capture as many

The venture was a disaster, largely because the terrain was too rough and the herd too small. But Lafone did not give up easily. He weot to buy land, got new backing and returned to the islands in 1851, armed with a royal charter, a grant of 800,000 acres and an idea to try sheep instead.

Today Falkland Island wool is highly pri zed. According to Tony Kassapian, bead of Bradford Wool Merchants Kassapian (combers) Ltd., which buys most of the output, the wool is "unusually white and exceptionally free of vegetable matter."

Many of the islanders, however, have accused company officials of using their virtual monopoly to bleed the Falklands dry.

Sea law talks run into rough weather

UNITED NATIONS, April 30 (AP) -Strong objections threatened to scuttle an international law of the sea convention Thursday, the eve of the planned final session of a Uoited Nations-sponsored confer-

Ambassador Tommy Koh of Singapore, resident of the conference, appealed to the 152 participating nations to support his last-ditch compromise attempt to salvage eight years of tough negotiations.

"We have a reodezvous with history omorrow," Koh told the conference. With your belp, your understanding, your cooperation and your goodwill, I am confident we will keep that rendezvous..."

could become more attractive for foreign investors than in past years, the U.S. Department of Commerce has said.

A firm and clear set of economic policies and rules expected to be implemented during the 1982-83 budget year could speed this trend, the department said. Foreign investors with projects to beoefit Egypt will receive more favorable treatment, it said.

In a special report, the Commerce Department said: "The public sector, which accounts for 80 percent of the industrial outout, will continue to be a domioant force io the Egyptian economy. Nevertbeless private investors, both foreign and Egyptian, have demonstrated that they bave the resourcefuloess to compete and to cooperate with the well-established public sector,"

Egypt's ecocomy bas progressed well over the past five years, with annual gross oational product growth rates of 8 percent to 10 percent, largely due to rapidly growing foreign exchange revenues from four key areas petroleum exports, workers' temittances from abroad, tourism, and Suez Canal traffic and foreign aid. The Egyptian agricultural and industrial sectors have grown only modestly and have contributed little to foreign exchange earnings.

Koh said: "The conference is willing to pay a price in order to obtain the support of the United States for the convention. That price is not, however, an unlimited one." Leigh S. Ratiner, deputy head of the U.S. delegation, indicated in advance that Koh's compromise proposals did not go far enough in meeting Washington's objections, especially with regard to proposed voting procedures for amending the convention at a review conference to be held 15 years after the treaty enters into force. The United States is concerned that the review conference could adopt "adverse changes" in the treaty and that this prospect will discourage investment hy American

To help meet U.S. objections, Koh suggested a three-fourths majority be required to amend the convention instead of proposed two-thirds vote. But Ratiner undersco-

1982 and the government is moving ahead with amhitious plans to develop largely neglected gas resources. The construction industry is the fastest growing segment of the Egyptian economy as lack of housing is one of the most acute problems the nation faces. The demand for new housing units is about 250,000 ayear, while about 100,000 units are actually constructed. There is a large demand for new office buildings, hospitals, botels, port facilities, roads and airports.

Kob said he hoped the draft convention would be adopted Friday by consensus. But Ratioer said the United States might ask for a vote, thereby forcing all states to take a public stand rather than taking refuge, despite reservations, behind a consensus. If adopted, rbe convention is to be signed in Caracas, Venezuela, this fall. It would require ratification by 60 signatories.

Ratiner said Koh's efforts to resolve differences through behind-the-scenes negotiations had "brokeo down" on Thursday "I'm supposed to be knowledgeable," Ratiner said outside the conference hall, "But I don't know what's going to happen next."

According to ratiner, the 51-nation U.N. African group as well as the Soviet bloc raised serious objections to an earlier Koh compromise to give Western industrial nations, Japan, India and the Soviet Union a pioneering monopoly over eight deepseabed mining sites for the next three to four decades.

The Japanese economy will become increasingly dependent on oversets mackets, with Wheat output set to touch new high

LONDON, April 30 (AFP) - Another record world wheat crop is io prospect in 1982 "somewhat larger" than the 1981 bumper harvest of 457 million metric tons, the loternational Wheat Council predicted in its latest report.

But the council pointed out that the level of prices over the next few weeks, and official policy measures in the major exporting countries, will have an "important bearing" on the total area sown. "It is therefore still too early to assess the likely size of the harvest particularly as a significant proportion of the crop is still to be planted.

Weather conditions during the past month have generally been beneficial in most wheat-producing regions. Wioter wheat crops in North America, Western Europe, Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union are developing normally, although in certain countries growth was affected by colder than normal weather in early spring. The outlook in these regions will now depend mainly on moisture supplies during the next few exports accounting for 27.7 percent on gross national product in 1990 against 20.8 percent

Noting that protectionist measures have frozen Japan's exports of cars to the U.S., the report said that Japanese manufacturers will concentrate on the Third World, particularly Latin America and the Middle East.

In Europe and the United States, the Japanese electronics industry will increase its sbare of the market for technology affecting computers, office equipment and robots.

The report explained this new export onslaught by noting that Japan was becoming the most industrialized country with the oldest population. The growth in the number of retired people will reduce consumer demand by about 3.5 percent, obligiog producers to export surplus output.

In the United States, the crop could still be "very large." Prospects for the winter wheat crop, which was planted on a record area. 'are very good."

In the spring wheat areas, cold and wet weather earlier in April delayed the start of plantings, but this is not yet causing concern, the council said. A "marked decline" in plantings is expected, it was added.

Canadian farmers intend to sow a record area to wheat, with the spring wheat area up four percent to 10.8 million hectares. Some delays are forecast in spring seedings due to a late spring. The Mexican harvest is now underway in the north in favorable weather, and prospects are "excellent".

The council expected production in the European Economic Community to be close to the 1981 near-record crop of 54.1 million tons. A further expansion has taken place in the sown area. Although average yields in some member states may not be as high as in

Productivity in America

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) - Business productivity in the United States increased at a slight 0.3 percent annual rate in the first three months of this year, reversing the record plunge of the last quarter of 1981, the Labor Department has reported.

The new report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics said the small gain in productivity resulted from a 3 percent drop in output and a 3.3 percent decline in working hours, based on preliminary, seasonally adjusted figures.

Productivity in the non-business sector tumbled at an annual rate of 6.9 percent in the October-December period last year, in the sharpest quarterly decline in the 34 years. the government has kept such records.

Over the past year, productivity has fallen at an annual rate of 1.8 percent, the report said. When the farming sector of the economy was added into the new figures, productivity declined at a 1 percent annual rate in the first three months of this year, the report said.

That was the third consecutive quarterly drop in productivity in the private business sector and represented a 4.2 percent drop in output and a 3.3 percent decline in working hnurs. The measure had fallen at a 6.6 percent annual rate in the final three months of

OECD fears recovery delay

PARIS, April 30 (AFP) - Economie recovery in the industrial world now seems certain to be delayed until early 1983, following virtual zero growth this year, according to forecasts presented to senior officials of the 24-nation Organization for Eennomie Cooperation and Development

This means unemployment is bound to rise further and might overshoot the 30 miltion mark in the OECD countries as a whole, reliable sources said.

The high-level OECD conomic policy committee (EPC), chaired by U.S. President Ronald Reagan's chief economic adviser Murray Weidenbaum, was told that stagnation would continue this year in the OECD area, which covers North America, Japan, Australia and New Zealand and Western Europe.

Experts here said this would be bad news for most Third World nations, including the 'newly industrializing countries" (NICS) of Asia and Latin America, which have already faced a marked decline in their export revenues as a result of fall in demand for raw materials and manufactured goods in the OECD countries.

OECD forecasters expect that the OECD area's aggregate gross National product (GNP) will rise by a mere 0.3 percent this year, down from 1.1 percent last year, mainly as a result of the deeper and longer than anticipated recession in the United States. According to their estimates, growth should pick up next year at a more moderate rate than previously thoreseen, with OECD recording a rise of 2.8 percent. Last December, OECD in its semi annual report on the economic outlook saw growth this year at 1.25 percent, but foresaw a gradual pick up in the second half with GNP rising at a rate of 1.3 percent.

Officials attending a two-bay EPC meeting in preparation for the annual OECD ministerial meeting scheduled for next May 10-11 said the latest OECD forecasts indicate that U.S. GNP will decline this year by 1.8 percent.

This compares with present U.S. administration forecast of a 1 percent drop in U.S. growth this year and brisk 5 percent growth next year. The U.S. administration expected good recovery in the second half of this year with growth running at an annual rate of 4 percent in the final quarter.

OECD's December forecasts set the U.S performance this year at minus 0.5 percent followed by a pick up at an annual rate of 3.2 percent in the first half of next year.

Ford bas been on the Arab boycott list since 1966 because it deals with Israel. "We bave decided that we are fools to lose the potential of selling millions of our ears in the Arab world and be satisfied with selling some 200 vehicles in Israel," a high Ford official, who asked not to be identified, said.

K.D. Holloway, president of Ford Mideast and Africa, Inc., told this paper: "We have always been interested in doing business with the Arab world and for some time now, specifically in the last few months, we have been supporting Arab causes and we are currently. underwriting a film about Saudi Arabia' (which premiered April 27 on the Public Broadcasting System.)

Asked if this support and the underwriting of the film were part of a definite plan to open the Arab market, Holloway declined to answer, saying that U.S. laws prevent him from revealing such information.

"We are not political, but we are commercial." Holloway said, and continued, "and we are interested in selling our products. I can only tell you that we have been expressing this interest to the Arab world and we are continuously pursuing this and hope to begin selling there before 100 long, "If we were doing something specifie. it doesn't make sense for us to tell the newspapers about it right now," he said.

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP) -Bob Boone's ninth-inning single snapped a scoreless tie and Geoff Zahn pitched a seven-hitter to give the California Angels a 2-0 victory over the New York Yankees Thursday night.

New York's Dave Righetti and Zahn were locked in a pitcher's duel until the eighth when Righetti finally tired and was replaced by George Frazier. Frazier got the final two outs in the eighth, but Shane Rawley hit Reggie Jackson on the right hand with a pitch to start the ninth.

Fred Lynn sacrificed pinch runner Jose Moreno to second and Rawley walked Tim Foli intentionally. Boone then singled home Moreno and Brian Downing followed with a sacrifice fly. Zahn struck our four and walked two in hurling his second shutout of the season. He worked out of trouble in three of the first four innings.

Astros releases Mike Ivie

Houston Bureau

HOUSTON, April 30 - The Houston Astros have decided to release the man who they hoped would bring powerhitting back to their lineup.

Last week. Mike Ivie told the Houston management - in front uf his agent - that he could no longer labor effectively in the field, and preferred to earn his living as a designated hitter.

After mulling is over for a week, Houston head coach Bill Virdon decided that he did not want to use lvie in any capacity. Ivie's release means that any club in baseball willing ro pick him up can du so for the minimum $33,500 salary required by the league. That figure is substantially less than the $400,000-plus wages lvie has been earning as an Astro. However, Houston will be responsible for continued payment of that large salary rhrough 1984. Should lvie gu to work for any other team, the Astros would have to pay only the difference between his new contract and that which he enjoyed in Houston. lvie's problems began last year when he entered the hospital for treatment of emo-tors squahle over minimum weightrequirements that led to a boycott by FOCA of last week's San Marino Grand Prix. But the parties left for home with no compromise in sight.

According to Larousse, boss of the Renault tcam, FOCA had posed as a condition for negotiations the recall of the tribunal decision which had stripped drivers Nelson Piquet and Keke Rosberg of their first and second placings in the Brazil Grand Prix. "To question the tribunal decision in one way or other was unacceptable," said executed adequately. Meanwhile, Pittsburgh wide receiver Lynn Swann said recently rhat an NFL players strike this summer is inevitable.

Swann said that even though a strike secms assured, most of the league's players don't want it, and are becoming increasingly annoyed with the union's leadership. Swann said that many of the union's demands are unreasonable, especially insistance on the union's part to share in 55 percent of the team OWNER'S PROfits.

Teams which boycotted San Marino Formula One Grand Prix will still take part in next month's Bolgian and Monaco events due to sponsors' pressure, motor racing sources said here. Major sponsors, tired of the rows and squabbles, threatened to pull out of Grand Prix racing if an amicable solution was not arrived at.

Sponsors warned they were no longer prepared to tolerate the never-ending disputes which," one source said, "are only detrimental to Formula One racing." Unless the disputes were settled and the sport stabilized, the major sponsors would withdraw their support, the source added. Sir Clive Bossom, Chairman of Britain's RAC Motor Sport Council, said: "Marlboro (the McLaren ream sponsors) has warned us thar rhey like exposure but not feuding. Clearly, enough could soon be enough."

But Villa did not escape entirely, UEFA imposing a 50,000 Swiss franc ($25,600) fine and ordering them to play their next home European match behind closed doors. Anderlecht were also punished with a 15,000 Swiss franc $7,500) fine for failing to take adequate measures to control the crowd at the UEFA said in a statement that "the committee concluded that the events in Brussels did not have any decisive influence on the outcome of the game." Both teams have until noon on May 3 to appeal.

Anderlecht spokesman Michel Verscheuren said in Brussels; "We are very disappointed with the result of the hearing, and we feel the fine (on Villa) is a light one."

In other decisions, the disciplinary committee fined the Italian Foothall Association 5,000 francs ($2,570) for unsporting behavior in an under-21 match against Scotland on March 24. Italy's Giuseppe Bergomi was banned from three UEFA games and Daniele Massaro from one game.

Scotland's Ray Stewart was banned from three UEFA under-21 matches and Engl-

Hoddle suffered damaged ligaments and

BRUSSELS, April 30 (Agencies) - Rene Vandereycken, a key member of Belgium's soccer side, will almost certainly miss the World Cup finals as a result of a knee injury sustained in the 2-1 win over Bulgaria this Doctors at the Bruges Hospital where Vandereycken was taken said Thursday the midfield player was suffering from a serious injury to the cartilege in his left knee and had little chance of being fit for the June finals. Vandereycken, who scored Belgium's only goal in their 2-1 defeat by West Germany in the 1980 European Championship final, has recently taken up a defensive role for Belgtum, and lined up as a center-hack against Bulgaria. He currently plays for the Italian side Genoa, and returned there for further treatment.

Belgium's problems were increased when the Belgian senate refused naturalization to star forward Juan Lozano, Lozano a Spanish. had applied for naturalization too late and, although the House of Representative voted it, the senate refused to be rushed for sports reasons. Thursday, Lozano only got 53 votes while 76 were required for his naturalization. Hansi Muller doubtful

Brilliant West German midfielder Hansi Muller, suffering from a bad right knee too appears more and more doubtful for the World Cup.

Muller, 24, who spent much of the season

Novemrecovering from a knee operation in November, has entered a clinic in Frieburg for an eight-day examination.

The same knee swells when Muller plays a demanding match, as when his team Stuttgart met Borussia Moenchengladbach in a championship fixture Saturday. "My health first," said the Muller, known in Germany as the "Brazilian" For his virtuoso style of play.

"After that I'll see if I should change my plans for the World Cup. In any case, it is not my choice." Hope for Hoddle

Another injured star, Glenn Hoddle of Tottenham Hotspur was told Thursday he sbould be fit to play in the English Cup final limped off the field while playing for England against Wales in the British Championship at Cardiff Tuesday night. Peter Shreeves, Tottenham assistant manager, said: "The injury is Division. not as serious as we believed. Glenn will probahly miss four games."

Tottenham, still with a remote chance of landing the English League and Cup double. has a heavy hacklog of fixtures in the league before meeting Second Division Queen's Park Rangers in the Cup final at Wemhley

Stadium May 22. Meanwhile Nilly Bingham, manager of the Northern Ireland soccer team, predicted that defender Mal Donaghy will be his star player

"He was outstanding in our 1-1 draw with hig splash when he arrives in the English First Division next season." Donaghy plays for Luton Town, which is way out in front of its rivals in the promotion race in the Second

Northern Ireland is due to play in Group Five of the World Cup, against Spain, Yugoslavia and Honduras. The international football's ruling body has launched an anti-violence appeal to the 24 qualifiers in a hopeful bid to keep the tournament incident-free. "Violence denatures and dishonors sport," reads a statement sent to 24 federations by the International Foothall Federation (FIF-A). "We will soon be playing in the World Cup before hundreds of millions of television spectators.

Two share lead in Nelson golf DALLAS (AP) - Veteran George

Archer used a new putter to good advantage, one-patting 10 times en roure to a 5under-par 65 and a share of the first round lead Thursday in the $350,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic. "That's probably the best I've putted in many, many years," said Archer, a 42-year-old former Masters champion who scored the last of his 12 PGA tour victories six years ago.

Areher, now in his 19th year on the pro tour, had the lead alone until he recorded his lone bogey of the day, on the 18th hole, dropping back into a rie for the top spot with Curtis Strange, who scored a 31 on his front

"The course ean't play any easier." Archer said. "There wasn't a breath of wind, the greens were soft and you could fly rbe ball right at the hole." Defending champion Bruce Lietzke, who won the tournament with an over-par total last year, shot one-under and trailed 15 men. The group at 66 included Brue Fleisher, Erie Batten and Vance Heafner.

At May Day rally

Solidarity plans protest was by about 500 persons in the central Victrground Solidarity activists Friday called on union members and those opposed to the military government to disrupt Saturday's May Day march organized by the authorities in central Warsaw. A leaflet circulating in the capital signed by the fugitive head of Solidarity in the Warsaw region, Zbigniew Bujak, and an inter-factory committee of the suspended free trade unioo called for an alternative march. Although there was no way of confirming the authenticity of the leaflet, normally reliable underground sources said it was genuine. The leaflet followed a meeting two days ago between Bujak and a member of the committee, which represented Solidarity groups in Warsaw's main factories, they said. It appeared to indicate growing coordination be tween the groups opposing martial law. Gen. Wojeiech Jaruzelski, the head of the military council of national salvation and Communist Party leader, is due to speak at the start of the parade, a relatively low-key affair compared to years before the rise of Solidarity in 1980.

Any effective disruption would acutely emharrass the leadership, which this week announced the release of 1,000 internees — a third of the total - in response to what it called a gradual normalization of the situation. The parade is traditionally televised live.

Warsaw streets have already been festooned with red and white flags to mark May Day, traditionally the most important public occasion throughout Communist Eastern Europe. Solidarity also boycotted last year's celebrations, saying workers should he allowed to enjoy their own holiday in whatever way they wished.

Public demonstrations not sanctioned by the authorities have been forbidden under martial law, and there have been no major unofficial gatherings in the capital, except religious meetings, since December. The biggest

U.S. passes bill on nuclear waste WASHINGTON, April 30 (R) - The U.S. Senate bas passed a controversial bill to establish a national policy for the storage and disposal of toxic nuclear wastes from commercial power plants. By a vote of 69-9, senators agreed Thursday night to authorize storage of the wastes, which can remain dangerous for thousands of years, in deep geological repositories. The produce a plan which would allow the gov-. ernment to retrieve stored nuclear wastes or spent atomic fuel. This would allow it to extract radioactive plutonium to make nuclear bomhs in the future if necessary. Although the legislation calls on the federal government to consult with individual states before sites for storage are selected, senators in the states likely to be chosen were far from satisfied with this provision. Democratic Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, where salt deposits make it a likely candidate for nuclear storage, proposed an amendment to delay implementation of the hill for three years. It was rejected.

Another Democrat, William Proxmire of Wisconsin, offered an amendment that would allow each state an absolute veto over any storage site selected by federal officials. This, too, was rejected.

The hill now goes to the House of Representatives for consideration. Under the oew legislation ouclear power companies would pay fees to help pay for permanent ory Square on April 16 to mourn a dozen workers officially reported killed in clashes with security forces since the takeover. Police quickly dispersed the erowd.

Meaowhile, Polish primate Jozef Glemp returned here from Rome Thursday after talks with Polish-born Pope John Paul II. Before leaving Rome, the archhishop said the decision to release the 1,000 prisoners and to lift the four-month-old curfew on May 2 was "a step, hut a small step" toward relaxing martial law. But he said the move was a "meaningful gesture" which could clear the way for other measures to case the situation

In Washington, the U.S. government welcomed the decision to release the detainees and called for all Solidarity members to be freed. State Department spokesman Dean Fisher said the decision "may be a sign that the Polish government is beginning to recognize that without full restoration of the rights of Polish people, it can make no economic

West to boycott Moscow function

MOSCOW, April 30 (AFP) - May Day celehrations on Moscow's Red Square will be boycotted for the third year running by major Western oations, but China will be represented by its ambassador.

The boycott was called in protest at Moscow's invasion of Afghanistan at the end of December 1979. In May 1980, France alone among the larger Western powers attended This year, the United States, Britain.

France, West Germany, Italy and Japan will be represented only by junior embassy staff. Greece, whose attitude to the Soviet Unioo changed when the Socialists won office last year, will be represented by its Ambassador Andreas Meiaxas, the embassy reported. The Chinese Embassy also confirmed the ambassador would attend.

, The Scandinavian countries, which boycotted the other major Soviet event last year the November 7 parade commemorating the October Revolution — in protest at a violation of neutral Sweden's territorial waters by a Soviet submarine, will attend Saturday.
